

CPSU NSW: The disability workers' union has you covered

The CPSU NSW has proudly represented workers in disability service for decades.

Our record of achievement speaks for itself: our members enjoy the most competitive employment conditions in the country.

That's because, as the largest union in the sector, we have the resources to provide high-quality member services and the capacity to fight for your rights at work.

To be clear, we cover employees performing work in social, community and disability services in NSW. This includes new employees and anyone performing work transferred from Ageing, Disability and Home Care (ADHC).

Whether you work in a group home, a respite facility or other disability service - we've got you covered!

The CPSU NSW is, and will always be, the union for disability workers in NSW.
